THE BLACK COUNTRY!

THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

The King and his Subjects

"THE HEAVILY INDUSTRIALIZED West Midlands of England" is how the 'Collins Concise Dictionary' describes The Black Country. But this definition of 'The Black Country' could shortly be changed after the publication of a report by the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys.

They estimate that ONE in SIX people living in the West Midlands is from the ethnic minorities, with Birmingham having the highest concentration. Out of a population of 900,000 there are 49,800 Indians, 39,700 Pakistanis and 36,100 West Indians.

The figures are based on the 1981 cenus and the OPCS acknowledge that they are only estimates. A spokesman from the office agreed that with the increase in immigration over the last 10 years and the results of illegal immigration and refugee settlement the final figures could be "considerably higher".

The report has stunned politicians in the area with Tory and Labour councillors calling for more positive discrimination in favour of the immigrants. Both main parties agreed that if the ethnic minorities made up 15% of the population they should be represented by 15% of the council workforce.

A local National Front spokesman was stunned too. He called for an immediate halt to immigration and for the commencement of phased, financially-assisted repatriation.

BAN FOREIGN IMPORTS

STUART LAKE exposes the grim reality behind Britain's manufacturing industry in kitchen appliances.

THE SORRY STATE into which the British manufacturing industry has descended over the last 40 years is a familiar story.

The steady flooding of our unprotected markets by foreign imports, the takeover of small family companies by larger publicly quoted ones, who in turn are bought by foreign companies and then moved to Europe, closing their British plants down and putting British workers on the dole.

The domestic appliance industry is a good example. If you look around your kitchen you will not find many British goods. In 1990 over £700 million worth of fridges, freezers, dishwashers, driers and microwave ovens were imported. In a market worth £1500 million 46% of all sales were of foreign manufacture. Indesits, Aristons and Zanussis poured in from Italy, Electrolux from Sweden and Toshibas from Japan.

A little closer examination of those bearing British sounding names will reveal their true identities.

★ Phillips UK is the largest maker and retailer of such goods in this country yet is a Dutch-owned corporation.

★ Although Hoover has plants in Britain it is American, the same applies to Rowenta and Black & Decker.

★ Creda and Hotpoint go to great lengths to parade their British credentials but in truth they are no longer independent companies but are owned by the multi-national General Electric Company directed by the cosmopolitan Lord Weinstock.

Some gems however that remain in the British crown which deserve the support of the British public - LEC Refrigeration in Sussex has 20% of the market share of fridges and freezers and Servis in the West Midlands has a tiny 8% of the share for laundry appliances.

With a Government that has a "laissez-faire" capitalism at its core and with our trade policy increasingly under the control of Brussels the future for home grown British business looks far from bright.

The Slide to Ruin!

UNEMPLOYMENT IS rising faster in Britain than in any other Common Market country, according to a study by The Times. This shock finding came as unemployment broke through the two million barrier in March.

Using so-called "headline unemployment" figures - the number actually out of work, The Times analysis found Britain's rocketing unemployment to be the worst in Europe.

Using the latest available year-on-year figures, unemployment in Britain is rising by 16.2% a year. Only in Greece, a bankrupt country on the brink of the Third World, were things anything like as bad. Their dole queues are lengthening by 15% a year.

The truth is that - for all the hype about the "Thatcher Revolution" - the Tories have proved no more able than Labour before them to halt the underlying decline in the British economy. The steady slide from world leadership to ruin, which Tory, Labour, Liberal, all the old parties, have impotently presided over for over a hundred years now. The slide from which only the radical medicine of the National Front can save us. Before Britain becomes economically, as she is steadily becoming ethnically, an outpost of the Third World.

Job Losses at Mill

By Stephen Ebbs

IT WAS announced on the 7th March that a further 165 jobs are to lost at the India Mills at Darwen in Lancashire. The mill employs nearly 600 people and is part of the Coats Viyella Group.

After just 66 days of 1991 nearly 1,000 textile job losses have been announced in the area, about 30 a day, a cold, sobering fact that is as disgraceful as it is tragic.

A company spokesman said "Despite improvements in both productivity and quality as a result of heavy investment in new plants and machinery we continue to be faced the the problems resulting from increasing imports of cheap foreign yarn, cloth and clothing.

The response from local politicians has been predictably pathetic. Labour councillor, David Smith said " . . . the recession is biting hard . . .". Conservative councillor Geoff Mottram said " . . we have a recession".

What either failed to mention was that it was cheap foreign imports that were putting British workers on the dole. The textile workers of Lancashire once led the world and could do so again given Government support - no-one can compete unaided against cheap imports from Third World sweatshops where workers are paid slave wages.

Only the National Front says 'Ban the importation of goods that we can produce ourselves', it is the only way to protect Britain's industries and jobs.

More Evidence of Fifth Column in Britain!

• PATRIOTIC: Mrs Ethel Tew, she replaced her torn Union Jack.

PATRIOTIC MRS Ethel Tew of Small Heath, Birmingham has flown a 3ft Union Jack from outside her house on various occasions since 1939 and the outset of World War II.

She never misses flying the flag on the birthday of members of the Royal Family, or St George's Day, and the Red, White, and Blue was proudly displayed throughout the Falklands War. But, during the Gulf War members of the Fifth Column working against Britain, yet living in our country, took action against Mrs Tew.

First she received a threatening letter warning her to "remove the racist flag" but Mrs Tew kept it flying. Then one night the flag was slashed to ribbons.

For the first time ever in the history of our Nation we have people within our midst who are hostile to Britain, the British people, British culture and British tradition. Every day they grow in number, in influence, and in the confidence that they can change our way of life. Action must be taken to stem this tide, and the National Front is the only political party that has the will to this.

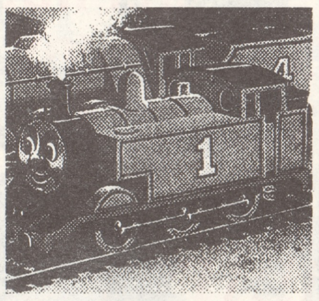
SAFER SMARTIES

BRITAIN'S FAVOURITE sweets, Smarties, are now much safer for our children to eat thanks to the York-based manufacturer, Rowntree, following new Food Advisory Committee guidlines.

In the past Rowntree have always used the artificial dye E127 erythrosine, for the colouring of the pink and violet varieties of Smarties, but they have now changed to the safer and natural additive cochineal.

Cochineal is made from beetle juice and is much healthier for our children, although one unlucky group of children will have to miss out on their favourite sweets. Apparently cochineal isn't Kosher and a spokesman for the Jewish community acknowledged that Smarties will join the long list of taboo foods in many Jewish households.

Tank Engine Banned!



BOOKS INCLUDING 'Postman Pat' and 'Thomas the Tank Engine' have been banned from nursery and primary schools in Dudley in the West Midlands because they present heroic, macho and male stereotypes.

The Labour Party loony behind the scheme is education officer, Ron Westerby, who has also banned 'Spot the Dog', 'Fireman Sam', and 'Super Ted'.

BENETTON'S AFFRONT TO BRITAIN!

by Stuart Lake

ADVERTISING IS designed to encourage people to buy a particular product or to make a statement about a company's performance or intentions.

Benetton, an Italian designer clothes company continues to make a statement about its intentions with its ongoing poster campaigns with the theme "The United Colours of Benetton".

It is under such a heading that a new poster has sprung up on the strategically placed hoardings around British towns. The poster features three young children one Black, one Asiatic and one White in a pose guaranteed to delight all those who would love to see the end of separate races, and the World, or at least Europe populated by a coffee-coloured mish-mash. The portrayal is particularly nasty in view of the age of these innocent youngsters, children who should grow up feeling pride for their own race's achievements.

For the vast majority of British people who are affronted by such posters there is nothing they can do but avert their gaze. That is until now. . .

The poster campaign is the work of one of Britain's largest advertising agencies J. Walker Thompson. The person responsible for this race destructive propaganda is one Helen Tridgell. Ms Tridgell and her team can be contacted at the main London offices at 40, Berkeley Square, W1X 6AD or on 071-499 4040 if readers would care to make their views known.

Needless to say the imported, over-priced Benetton products should be left on the shelves!

• THE POLITICS OF RACE: Although not the offending poster this is another example of how Benetton promotes multi-racialism. It is offensive to millions of Britons who have had coloured immigration forced upon them.

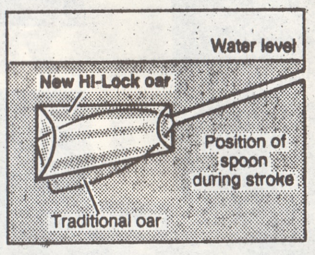
Another British First!

A BRITISH engineer has redesigned the oar to give an advantage of two to three lengths over a standard racing course.



The new design, by mechanical engineer Donald Ellis of Redditch, has been undergoing tests at Bristol University and significantly improves the efficiency and speed of the oarsman's stroke.

Unhappy Ending for our Film Industry

BRITAIN IS in danger of losing its film industry because of lack of Government backing.

For the last ten years help given to the industry has been steadily eroded. In 1983 and 1984, tax concessions for investment in British films were ended and in 1985 the Eady Levy, a compulsory contribution to the British Industry from cinemas showing foreign films was abolished. Now a promised £5 million Government rescue package has failed to materialise since the removal of Mrs Thatcher from No.10.

• STEVENSON: Grim Future

Wilf Stevenson, Director of the British Film Institute says the future looks very grim and the British people will live to regret the loss of British films, "If we don't have a film industry we will be living other people's myths" he said.

British film makers are the world's most sought-after and an average of 30 per cent of Oscars come to Britain.

TORIES AXE JODRELL BANK

THE JODRELL Bank radio telescope near Holmes Chapel on the Cheshire plain began probing signals from space in 1957 and tracked Russia's first Sputniks, but now the observatory faces closure because of Government cuts in Science and Engineering Research.

Also under threat is the Nuclear Research facility at Daresbury, near Warrington which employs 150 people and costs £6.5 million a year to run.

Its closure would mean the end of nuclear physics research in this country and confine Britain to the scrapyard in this scientific field.

These are just two examples of how the Tory Government is destroying the achievements of Britain's past and the hopes for Britain's future and all in aid of their desperate attempt to make money available to give tax cuts to the fat cats in the city and the parasites who live off them.

WIND POWER

The Clean Source of Renewable Energy

THE COUNTRYSIDE Commission is often commended in the pages of The FLAG but their latest press release is a classic example of "cutting off your nose to spite your face".

They are concerned about the visual intrusion of wind powered electricity generators on the rural landscape and want them banned from national parks and areas of outstanding beauty.

It is unfortunate that some of these areas are prime sites for siting wind turbines, with Land's End being a classic example. But wind power is the clean source of renewable energy for the future and together with tidal power must be given priority in this case over the arguments for preserving our countryside.

It would be more useful if the Countryside Commission put all its efforts into stopping the all-powerful road lobby from carving up our countryside and polluting its inhabitants with exhaust fumes rather than kicking up such a fuss over wind turbines which will, over all, protect our environment and our people.

TORIES: A Gaggle of Gutless Wimps

by Ted Budden

JAMES CALLAGHAN once described our form of government as "an elective dictatorship" in that the Prime Minister and the selected band of Cabinet cronies exercise absolute power to the total exclusion of everyone else, especially those drivelling nonentities sometimes laughingly called our elected representatives.

Callaghan himself proved the point when he succeeded Harold Wilson as Prime Minister and, from being a rather nice but lightweight political figure, grew into the larger shoes over night and began acting and looking like a real head of government, only to shrink back into insignificance once ousted from office.

Who would have thought, though, that Margaret Thatcher who, only a few short months ago, did bestride this narrow world like a demented old battle-axe would, on being given the worshipful order of the raspberry, become a busted flush and a political irrelevance almost immediately.

Now Thatcherism, one spoken of in awe as almost being a new religion, is being stealthily dismantled. Nobody but her own little clique of grovelling cronies cares any more what she thinks. It is said that Tory M.P.s now feel as though an oppressive weight has been lifted from the Party and that they all feel able once more to say what they think. This proves beyond doubt, if proof were needed, what a gaggle of gutless wimps they are.

Still, Madam Thatcher has been able to find some solace in the land she loves and for which she has sacrificed so much. Last month she was off to the headquarters of Murder Incorporated where she was awarded "America's highest civilian honour", the Medal of Freedom, in grateful recognition of her services to Uncle Sambo.

She deserved it. Never before did such a phoney so greatly deserve such a phoney medal, redolent with all the stench of hypocrisy that America can bestow.

Since our "British" Government so avidly apes America in all things, perhaps they should institute a British Freedom Medal - and award it to Michael Heseltine.

DERBY BRANCH MEETING

THE MARCH meeting of the Derby Branch of the National Front went ahead as usual on Thursday 14th March despite a cancelled booking and a Labour Party counter-demonstration.

The first Derby NF secretary, Rob Rainsford, knew of a problem with his booking of the Tramway Club in Charnwood Street was when he read on the front page of the Evening Telegraph that Police were concerned over a Labour Party demonstration outside the club.

Rob had made a booking with the club secretary, Mrs Pealing who had been enthusiastic over the Front meeting, later however, after news of the meeting was leaked to the Press, she had panicked and called in the Police.

NF Branch secretaries are used to such problems and Rob Rainsford had already booked a back-up hall where a successful meeting took place with three new members enrolling.

Apparently 40 Labour Party supporters, mostly Pakistanis, turned up at the Tramways Club to picket an NF meeting that was in full swing in another part of the town.

Brownhills NF

MORE THAN 40 people turned up to the first meeting of Brownhills National Front held last month.

Brownhills NF will work closely with the Walsall Branch in promoting the Party in a very fertile area of the West Midlands.

THE BATTLE FOR FREE SPEECH

WHEN WALSALL LIBRARY refused to stock National Front publications the local NF branch held a picket outside the library. A week later some 400 members of the Labour Party and the Pakistani and Indian Workers Association demonstrated against the NF picket!

The furore hit the headlines for a couple of weeks and then all was quiet. The library wasn't stocking our publications and that was final . . . or was it. Ron Cartlidge had different ideas?

Ron Cartlidge is the Walsall National Front secretary and treasurer, a party stalwart who joined in the early seventies and who rose to fame within the NF as Charles Parker's election agent in the 1976 Walsall North by-election when the NF vote stunned the establishment.

Ron has been beavering away for the Front ever since with his meticulous book-keeping and minute recording famous throughout the West Midlands.

Now Ron wasn't happy with the legality of Walsall Council's ban so he wrote to the Commission for Local Administration in England accusing the Walsall Council of maladministration.

The Local Ombusdsman pursued the complaint and found in favour of the Council finding that . . .

"It is not maladministration for decisions to be taken for political reasons - that is thc nature of local Government".

Ron Cartlidge was appalled that political bias should be sanctioned in such a way and took advice from The Library Association a professional body for librarians. Their Chief Executive George Cunningham agreed and wrote a stern reprimand to the Ombudsman pointing out . .

"It is the emphatic view of the Association that public libraries should endeavour to provide access to the broadest possible spectrum of political materials".

Mr Cunningham went on . . .

"This Association has been particularly concerned about the growing tendency of local authority councillors to allow their personal views to influence the selection of materials to be stocked".

The Chief Executive finished his letter . . .

"You could well mislead people about restrictions which clearly exist in law on the freedom of councillors to take account of political considerations in reaching their decision."

The Library Association has produced a leaflet called 'An Impartial Service' to back up their stand and have told Ron Cartlidge that if the National Front took Walsall Council to court for the 'unlawful banning of NF publications' they would have a very good chance of winning.

Ron Cartlidge's perserverance has won they day for the National Front and he deserves congratulations from all NF members. A court case is out of the question because £2,000 is needed just to start the ball rolling . . . unless, that is, anyone has £2,000 to spare to take on Walsall Council?

Active Life With London North

WEDNESDAY 13th March was a busy evening for London North NF. One team of activists attended a meeting on 'Human Rights and Famine' at a church hall in Picadilly, making sure that all those present were aware that the NF believed that Third World countries would be better off looking after themselves - a view that one of the speakers fully agreed with much to the suprise of the liberal audience.

It was then on to Conway Hall in Holborn for a Communist Federation Meeting, where, true to Communist tradition, those present refused to carry on their discussion on the Kronshtadt Revolution until the NF left.

While these members were having fun in the West End others were distributing leaflets against the closure of the North Finchley Army Recruiting Centre. The North Finchley office has particular significance because the IRA tried to murder a soldier there. The NF argued that to close it would give a victory to the Provos.

Such weekly activities are what makes a National Front branch healthy, wealthy and wise, cementing comradeship and providing entertainment while all the time promoting the NF.

WHEN BIRMINGHAM NF members saw leaflets being handed out by the Workers Party advertising a meeting where speakers were to call upon British soldiers to turn their guns on their officers, they thought they would go along.

But when half a dozen Front members turned up at Carrs Lane Church Centre the 20 or so supporters of the Workers Party refused to debate the issue with the NF and left the hall without the meeting even starting!

Proof of the Recession

IF PROOF were needed that Britain is in the grip of a recession one only has to look at the latest report from IBCA the bank rating agency.

It reveals that banks have far heavier debts now than they did in the recession of the early Eighties with the Midland Bank worse off setting aside £141 million against bad debts for its domestic lending or 1.18% of the total.

The report blames some of the bad debts on the antics of the City with financial engineering such as managerial buyouts playing havoc with British industry from where much of the debt originates.

The IBCA concludes that even though the domestic outlook is bleak the Banks will survive because unlike in the 1980s they no longer have large unprovided Third World debt portfolios threatening them.

Frog Was First

THE FIRST dry land crossing between Britain and France since the Ice Age was made by a frog according to British workers building the tunnel.

The say that after completing the 2 inch borehole joining the British and French sections of the tunnel they were astonished when a small frog dispatched by their French counterparts jumped out of the borehole into the British half of the tunnel.

Eurotunnel officials are said to be embarrassed by the whole episode because their terms of employment make no bones about the fact that anyone caught smuggling animals into the tunnel faces instant dismissal.

DEFENDING THE NATION'S HEALTH

PRESCRIPTION CHARGES have risen yet again. Since April 1st each item has cost 35p more. A rise of 11.4%, well above the rate of inflation.

Labour first made sick people pay for their prescriptions. And the Tories have increased the charge 13 times. It was 20p when they came to power in 1979. Now every item on a prescription costs £3.40, a 17-fold increase in 12 years.

The doctors' union, the British Medical Association, has condemned this latest extortion from the sick. The BMA said doctors knew of patients who could no longer afford to pay for the medicines prescribed for them. "While the Government is tinkering around at the financial edges rather than addressing the real problem of underfunding, some of our most vulnerable patients are being asked to pay more to prop up the National Health Service" a BMA spokesman said.

A study by the Institute of Fiscal studies last year found that the last Tory prescription charge hike then led to a 40% fall in the number of drugs prescribed. Other studies back up the BMA doctors' point. They show that patients prescribed more than one medicine are often only collecting the first item on the prescription from the chemist because they can't afford the charges on the rest. The result could literally be deadly.

While British people are dying because they can't afford to pay for their medicine, the Tories also have condemned the less-well-off to more toothache. The maximum charge for dental treatment is now £200. Below that, you pay three-quarters of the cost of anything done to your teeth. If you can't afford it, they rot and you get toothache.

Once Britain's free National Health Service was the showpiece of the world. Lifting the scourge of needless suffering and death from all our people. Now it is collapsing for lack of money and is far from free. Once more the poor must suffer.

The National Front regards a healthy people as the bedrock of a healthy nation. Defending the public from attack by germs and injury is as much the duty of the Government as defending them from crime and foreign attack. Our health defence should be just as thoroughly provided out of the public purse as policing and the military. Paid for out of taxes levied from everyone fairly in proportion to their ability to pay.

We say "Scrap all prescription charges and all other extortions from the ill and the old. Bring back a properly-funded, British-staffed, decent quality National Health Service. It is the birthright of every true Briton.

THE CHRISTIAN religion in Britain is dying on its feet according to the English Church Census published last month.

The least Christian area is South Yorkshire where less than 6% of people go to Church, followed by Leicester and Inner London where just 7% were practising Christians.

The Lake District and Cumbria were the English Church's best area with a following of 15%.

Church of England, Catholic, United Reform Church and Methodist Churches all face a drastic fall in attendance figures with only the independent Afro-Caribbean religions reporting a rise in followings.

The trend will continue until Church leaders start to oppose the moral decline in Britain. They should start with a campaign for the family and open condemnation of homosexuality.

• BLEAK FUTURE: South Africa faces a bloodbath because of tribal differences. Seperate nations for the different people of that tormented country is the only answer to the problems.

Afrikaaners Cry Freedom

STEVE BRADY REPORTS

UNDER SOUTH Africa's old apartheid system, the Whites oppressed and exploited the Blacks. Now the country seems to be sliding towards "majority rule" under which the Blacks are set to exploit and oppress the Whites. And probably each other, under a corrupt dictatorship. That is the norm in Black Africa, which has had over 150 Heads of State since 1957, only six of them giving up power democratically.

But now the mainly Afrikaaner Conservative Party has come forward to offer a third way. Briefing journalists in March, CP leading figure Pieter Mulder unveiled a vision which would free South Africa from racial oppression. Instead of seeking to restore Whites ruling Blacks, or accepting Blacks ruling Whites, partitioning South Africa into an independent Afrikaaner state for the Whites and one or more state for the Blacks (themselves bitterly divided into warring tribes who might well be better off apart).

Warning that SA State President de Klerk's sell-out to the Marxist terrorist African National Congress through "Black majority rule" was a recipe for disaster, the Afrikaaner spokesman went on: "Safeguards for minorities which aim at frustrating Black power have not worked in the past, nor can they work in the future. It is an illusion to believe that a way can be found to rule a deeply divided society in such a way that one group will not be dominated by others. When these realities finally become clear to all South Africans, we might find ourselves in a Lebanon-type situation".

Mr. Mulder warned that his people had never accepted and would never accept living under an alien tyranny. They did not in the late 19th Century and they would not in the late 20th. Pointing out that "most South African White males have received a high level of military training", he added that the Afrikaaners "invented guerrilla welfare . . . and we are good at it."

He added that everywhere else in the world the rights of minority peoples to national freedom and independence were accepted. "Why should we be treated any differently? As Afrikaaners we claim self-determination!"

DON'T WORK

Mr. Mulder and the Conservative party are right. A multi-racial society in South Africa run by Blacks will be as much of a recipe for tyranny, strife and human suffering as was a multi-racial society there run by Whites. Multi-racial societies don't work. In practice it always means either the oppression of one race by another or the destruction through racemixing of both races. And racial oppression corrupts and degrades the oppressor as much as it crushes and degrades the oppressed.

The SA Conservative Party offers another way. A way out of the cycle of racial conflict which has bedevilled Southern Africa for decades. A way in which no man builds his freedom on another's slavery. By asserting their right to separate nationhood, the Afrikaaners cry freedom not just for themselves but for all the peoples of South Africa. It is a cry that deserves to be heeded!

Industry Skimps on Brainpower!

IN THE last issue of The FLAG, we exposed the pathetic level of Government support for British Research and Development (R & D). Now it emerges that private industry is no better at funding British brainpower.

Last month the Central Statistics Office published figures showing R & D spending by UK companies had dropped to just 1.4% of gross domestic product in 1989 (the latest year for which figures are yet available). This is half the Japanese level.

Reacting to these figures Michael Skok, UK Managing Director of computer software firm Symantec said "This is a pathetically low figure, compared to the profit margins of the country's 'Times' Top 1000 companies".

The House of Lords Science and Technology Committee reacted even more forcefully. In early March they said that if attitudes don't change in Government and the business community Britain could end up with no significant home-grown manufacturing industry.

PUNCH OF ORDER!

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATE took on a new form when the Sri Lankan Parliament discussed a Bill to set up a farmers' organisation.

It's not that the Government and opposition disagreed on policy. The argument was over whether it should be debated or not. It was decided in the good old Asian manner, a right free-for-all with 30 politicians slugging it out in the chamber. Six were injured and had to receive hospital treatment.

The Real Face of Kuwait

A KUWAITI banker claimed he was refused a platform by the media during the Gulf War because he had information linking the ruling Al-Sabah family with Death Squads.

Dr. Abdul Aziz, chairman of the Gulf Bank of Kuwait, claimed on America's ABC Nightline programme that Kuwait's Royal Family had drawn up a list of the country's democratic opposition and hired assassins to kill them.

This information was passed on to the US and British Governments in August of last year but Dr Aziz was told it was not the time to make this information public.

Cinders Shall Go To The Bonfire

BURNING WIDOWS to death on their husband's funeral pyre - "suttee" - is a vital part of Asians' Hindu religion, according to leading Indian politicians.

India's Energy Minister, Kalyan Kalvi, said of suttee recently "Nobody can interfere with these rites". Speaking of the Hindu faith folllowed by Asians not just in India but in cities and towns across Britain, Cabinet minister Kalvi went on "Beliefs are hard to kill. Some worship trees, others dogs, rats in temples and even donkeys".

RIGHT TO BURN

Another top Indian politician, Mrs. Vijayaraje Scindia, said suttee was part of the Hindu religion and no Indian woman should be deprived of her right to burn to death. Mrs Scindia is not only a member of the Royal Family of the Princedom of Gwalior but a leading figure in the hardline Hindu Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) The BJP is a major member of the "National Front" (no relation!!) coalition now governing India. It is expected to grow even bigger and gain many more MP's in the country's forthcoming General Election.

Such calls for the repeal of the legal ban on the barbarous practice of suttee are growing in Indian political circles. A ban imposed by the British in 1829 and under our rule strictly enforced. Since independence in 1947 wifeburning has been on the increase, although figures are hard to come by as it is still officially illegal. Cabinet Minister Kalvi admitted to at least 22 cases of public ritual wife-burning since independence.

BRUTALLY

A notorious case occurred in September 1987, in Deorala, Rajasthan, when one Roop Kanwar was taken by sword-wielding Rajput youths to her husband's blazing funeral pyre, onto which she was brutally thrown. A shrine in honour of her suttee has been erected on the site of her agonizing death, at which Asians come to pray. Such shrines are also illegal under India's British-derived law. But the authorities have turned a blind eye. After all, public wifeburning may be legal again soon . . .

JUSTICE FOR ALL!

Injustices in Ulster
STEVE BRADY
Reports

WE'VE ALL HEARD the media fanfare about the Birmingham Six, the Gildford Four and the alleged RUC shoot-to-kill policy against notorious Republican terrorists in Co. Armagh in 1982. But while Republicans and avowed IRA supporters are released almost daily, the Armagh Four, four soldiers of the British Army's Ulster Defence Regiment, still rot in jail, falsely accused of a murder on evidence far weaker than that against the Birmingham and Guildford Republicans.

Nor are they the only British patriots to fall foul of this double standard. On September 2nd 1989 Brian Robinson allegedly shot IRA terrorist Patrick McKenna outside Ardoyne Shopping Centre in Belfast. He was knocked flying from his motorbike when it was rammed at over 70 m.p.h. by a blue Astra containing a plainclothes Army unit. A unit who had watched the McKenna shooting without trying to intervene.

Indeed they had watched Mr. Robinson while he waited for McKenna, as had another Army Intelligence unit in a green Fiat Regatta. That they could have intervened effectively is clear from what happened next. As Mr. Robinson lay unconscious on the ground after being hurled from his bike, the Army undercover team cold-bloodedly riddled him with bullets from an Israeli Uzi submachine gun, killing him outright.

Despite a civil action being taken by Mr Robinson's widow against the security forces for this wholly needless killing, not a peep has been heard out of the media machine over this. Unlike the howls of orchestrated outrage when a similar Army undercover team shot three Republicans in Whiterock in January 1990.

However, Mrs. Robinson has persisted in her campaign for justice, and in April 1990 Amnesty International called for an independent enquiry into the shooting of Brian Robinson. If he had been an IRA man, this would have been headline news. As it is The FLAG is the first mainland newspaper to mention the matter.

PROVO KILLERS

Further double standards emerge from the notorious Stevens Inquiry into leaking of lists of known IRA terrorists from the security forces. Far more effort has gone into pursuing those suspected of leaking these lists than has ever gone into dealing with the killers and bombers named on the lists themselves. Known Provo killers, swagger the streets and even sit in Ulster Council chambers, knowing the security forces are forbidden to touch them. Many have been freed to kill again after being jailed for earlier atrocities.

Meanwhile 37 loyal Britons rot in jail on remand, convicted of no crime, accused only of trying to expose Government inaction against the IRA. Many are members of the security forces and of impeccably good character.

18 year-old Jennifer Peoples from Londonderry was detained on remand for over a year accused of the heinous crime of typing out the list of known IRA men, a copy of a security force list. Bail was consistently refused though she had never been in any sort of trouble before.

A number of UDR soldiers in our Army had their homes wrecked by the secret police at dawn in the course of this inquiry. In many cases nothing was found and they were never charged. But their home addresses had been betrayed to the IRA. So families in our armed forces had to flee their homes and move elsewhere in fear of their lives, thanks to their security force "colleagues".

This is the Tories' "war against the IRA". Loyalists are rounded up and effectively interned without trial for months on the slightest evidence. Others are gunned down by the Army in cold blood or jailed on pathetic "evidence". All to a deafening media silence. The IRA know that the slightest irregularity in their treatment, or any conviction not based on 110% watertight evidence, is ripe for over-turning and will unleash an international media uproar.

Labour MP's will rise in the Commons to defend them. Public Inquiries will descend all around. And if any Republicans do go down they have every chance of being freed as global celebrities after years of effort by all and sundry on their behalf.

This is the hypocrisy and double standards which drives some patriotic soldiers and policemen to leak lists of the IRA killers they are not allowed to touch. And which drives other loyal Britons to take the war against the IRA into their own hands.

The Hypocrisy of the RSPCA

THIS PHOTOGRAPH APPEARED in 'The Times' last month enlarged to fill a whole page. It is part of a very expensive media campaign launched by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to draw the public's attention to the plight of animals transported abroad where they are inhumanely butchered.

It is a pretty appalling photograph, but is not, by far, the most cruel and horrific photograph the RSPCA have on file. They have, in their possession, the most barbarous and evil pictures of animal slaughter ever taken. Photographs of an animal upside down, constrained in a metal chamber and having its throat cut by a man with a knife. In fact they are not unlike the picture above only much more gruesome.

Now I am not criticising the RSPCA's current campaign, I am just confused as to why they are spending so much money on a campaign to stop animals being cruelly slaughtered abroad when hundreds of thousands of animals are being even more cruelly killed here in Britain.

Yes, those pictures that the RSPCA are keeping to themselves are of ritual slaughter. The killing of an animal, without stunning, by cutting its throat and allowing its blood to drain out.

It is a method of slaughter right out of the Dark Ages and it goes on in slaughterhouses throughout Britain to serve the needs of Britain's Jewish community and the rapidly growing Muslim community. There is also an export market for meat and poultry ritually slaughtered here in Britain.

Of course I'm not really confused as to why the RSPCA don't campaign against this sick and disgusting form of killing. I know exactly why. One only has to look at the list of patrons of the RSPCA and the names of the people of influence within that organisation. They are people who have joined and climbed the promotional ladder to positions of power within the RSPCA and other animal welfare groups since the 1974 Slaughterhouse Act first took a real step to outlaw the practice of Ritual Slaughter.

That Act came about because of pressure exerted by the RSPCA. Continued pressure would have ensured that further Acts would have been passed ensuring that the agony of animals in Jewish and Muslim slaughterhouses would have ended long ago.

Conspiracy? Yes of course it's a conspiracy. There is no other possible reason why the RSPCA does nothing to stop the Ritual Slaughtering of livestock, an animal holocaust that is taking place under their very noses.

Sharing our Country

★ Place of origin: Mainly rural villages around Sylhet, Bangladesh, formerly East Pakistan, before that Eastern Bengal. How these villagers of the Lower Ganges Valley came to acquire a right of abode in Britain is, as so often in such matters, not entirely obvious.

★ Areas of colonisation: "There are more in Tower Hamlets (East London) than anywhere else . . . Other large towns and cities have large numbers of Bangladeshis too - Birmingham, Luton, Oldham, Bradford and, in London, Camden and my borough of Southwark" (Simon Hughes, Liberal M.P. for Southwark and Bermondsey, House of Commons Hansard, 20th July, 1990).

★ Numbers in Britain: Officially 108,000 (Mr. John Patten, Minister of State at the Home Office, Hansard, 20th July, 1990). Real figure: "Perhaps approaching 150,000" (Simon Hughes, Hansard, 20/7/90) "It is unclear how many Bangladeshis live here" (House of Commons Home Affairs Select Committee report, December 1986).

★ Birth rate: Bangladeshis breed 4.7 times faster than White Britons. Specifically, Bangladeshi total period fertility rate (children per average couple) 8.0 (White British, 1.7); mean pregnancies per fertile year 0.238 (White British, 0.058); percentage of babies born to mothers over 35 years old, 23.0 (British, 7.0). (SOURCE: 1985 official birth statistics, cited in Modell, Dr. B., paper in Biology and Society, Vol. 5, No.1, p.29, March 1988).

"67% of Bangladeshi households contain five or more members, compared with the national average of 10%" (House of Commons Home Affairs Select Committee report, December 1986, cited by Simon Hughes M.P., Hansard, 20/7/90).

● LARGE FAMILIES: 67% of Bangladeshi households contain 5 or more.

★ Contribution to British Society: "About 62 percent of the Bangladeshi community who wish to work are unskilled, compared with 16% of the White community" (Simon Hughes M.P., Hansard, 20/7/90)

"78% of 15-year-old Bengali speakers are not fluent in English" (House of Commons Home Affairs Select Committee report, December 1986).

In Tower Hamlets, East London, the Bangladeshi colony is in "competition . . . for increasingly scarce housing" with the white British community (Commons select Committee Report, December, 1986).

★ Special Treatment from British Society: £110 million in 1990 of "Section 11 grants, made specifically to deal with the needs of the ethnic minority communities" (Simon Hughes M.P., Hansard, 20/7/90.

"The Metropolitan Police are considering relaxing the height restrictions for entry to the Police, so that the Bengali Community can play a full part in the policing of London" (Mr. Jeremy Hanley, Conservative M.P. for Richmond and Barnes, Hansard, 20/7/90.

"Yes, the Metropolitan Police and police forces in other parts of the country wish to have as many recruits as possible from the Bangladeshi communities, as soon as possible. I want to see the Bangladeshi communities being able similarly to contribute to many other parts of British life. Bangladeshis . . . correspond closely to some core elements of British society". (John Patten, Minister of State at the Home Office, Hansard, 20/7/90.

So there they are, your "fellow Bangladeshi-British citizens" as Tory Minister Patten described them. Hope you like them. Because, regardless, you're going to have to lump them. Unless, of course, you vote National Front.

The Ted Budden Column

Hidden Agenda

I SEE that stormin' Norman Schwarzkopf has had to apologise to his bosses in Washington for stormin' too much with his mouth. Norman is reported as having declared that his mongrel army should have pressed on and taken Baghdad after the Iraqis had been driven out of Kuwait. Norman apparently has not been told that the destruction of Iraq is to be accomplished by other means.

You may recall that the original pretext for despatching American troops to the Gulf was the imagined threat posed to Saudi Arabia by Iraq's mighty military machine before which the whole world trembled. When it became clear that Iraq had not the slightest intention of invading Saudi Arabia, America, through its front organisation the United Nations, resolved to drive the Iraqis from Kuwait by imposing a blockade.

Though this blockade was clearly effective President Bush, like another leader now 46 years deceased, declared that his patience was exhausted and that he had decided to move the goalposts yet again and drive Iraq from Kuwait by force. This involved the destruction of almost all the infrastructure of Iraq; its roads, its sewers, its power supplies, its medical facilities, its water supplies; in fact just about everything that made civilised life possible.

It is now conveniently forgotten that none of this was ever sanctioned by the so-called coalition or the so-called United Nations. There was never any consent given for the destruction and dismemberment of Iraq nor for the killing of thousands of its citizens nor any plan to do so save in the Americans' own hidden agenda, tailored to maintain Israel as the dominant military power in the Middle East.

Now American forces occupy Southern Iraq. They have promised to go no farther as a sop to their "coalition partners". Instead they aim to dismember Iraq by arming, supplying, and financing all the dissident elements within that country.

All this has been done to a country that has done no harm at all to either America or Britain.

Wherever the Americans have intervened in this world they have left behind them chaos and misery, death and destruction, famine and disease.

There is no mystery about America's hidden agenda. The only doubt is who is to be its next victim.

It Could Never Happen Here

I SEE that President Gorbachev is getting a real hammering from the Western "free" press over his handling of the recent mass demonstration in Moscow. It is alleged that because the law did not allow him to ban the demonstration, he massed thousands of troops and police to prevent the demonstrators reaching the Kremlin and that the security forces were carrying truncheons under their coats. Gosh! This is dictatorship run riot.

I must say though that I'm a little confused. The demo was in support of Boris Yeltsin, a man who looks to me like an opportunist who is shifty and furtive enough to be the leader of a British political party. Furthermore, all these downtrodden dissident Russians who are labouring under a frightful dictatorship seem to enjoy a great measure of free speech and to exploit it to a degree that would land them in jail in Britain as it already has members of the National Front.

As for banning demonstrations; Gorbachev really should try to be as democratic as we are. He hasn't the power to ban them whereas in this country any dim copper can ban them on the slightest whim. As for keeping demonstrators away from the Kremlin; I seem to recall that Downing Street is protected by a steel fence and that our coppers not merely carry truncheons under them coats but will freely lay them across the scalps of demonstrators at the slightest show of disobedience.

The trouble is that the Russians are such novices at the arts of democracy. They keep on passing great masses of law when all they really need is a single Public Order Act such as we have in this democratic country of ours. They could then abolish every freedom at a stroke.

As has often been said, "this isn't Russia, is it." No indeed. They have constitutional rights. We have no constitution and therefore no constitutional rights.

But since, unlike the Russians, the British will never have the guts to claim the rights they think they have, I don't suppose anyone will ever notice.

Self-Inflicted

THE TORIES have been getting very worried about John Major. They think he is a bit lack-lustre. Yes indeed; I've noticed that he's not very lustrous or, for that matter very much anything.

This has given "Poison Peanut" Kinnock new confidence for in the past he has had to suffer the humiliation of being consistently shouted down by the hectoring fishwifery of Margaret Thatcher. What with Thatcher on one side and his old red tomato Glenys on the other, he was acquiring the air of quiet desperation that marks the hag-ridden henpecked husband. Now, with Thatcher having been shown the red card, he feels that he has a chance with a Prime Minister as ineffectual as himself.

So it was with bated breath that we awaited the their titanic clash during the "confidence debate" that was once and for all to settle the political gnatweight championship of the world.

Kinnock as usual, strove might and main to employ incisive rhetoric and trenchant wit and, as usual, failed miserably on both counts. Major, having been urged by his colleagues to be decisive and dominant did his best but, alas, whoever heard of a dominant and decisive civil servant.

It was all reminiscent of a faltering, fumbling, exercise by a sixth-form debating society. Such a disappointment.

In defence of John Major it is claimed that he has been unwell; that the exhausting cares of office have so lowered his resistance that he has become the victim of a virus.

Well we all know what a virus is, don't we. It is God's gift to doctors who now routinely diagnose "some sort of virus" when they haven't got the vaguest idea what's wrong with you.

However, in John Major's case it may well be a virus; indeed if he was a soldier he might well be up on a charge of "self-inflicted illness".

For surely he must have realised that anyone who kisses as many American arses as he has lately is bound to catch something nasty.

Crocodile Tears

THE HORRIFIC murders of two teenage girls and a young man in Graigavon have been rightly and roundly condemned by just about everyone on both sides of the sectarian divide in Northern Ireland. Such ghastly murders are worse than merely evil - they are pointless.

However, once the sense of outrage has subsided it is worth remembering that, apart from the youth of the victims, these murders are no worse than the continuing succession of killings in Northern Ireland over the years. What is different is the emphasis placed upon them by the media; in particular the BBC; now generally acknowledged to be the IRA's official mouthpiece in Britain and the chief propaganda agent with the task of ensuring that convicted IRA terrorists are not inconvenienced by having to spend too long in jail.

Loyalist victims far more numerous - may expect merely a brief mention from the BBC and to be soon forgotten whereas "Republicans", especially IRA sympathisers, will receive far more extended coverage and the tone of the outrage will be many decibels higher.

But then the BBC is not the only enemy of Britain employing such tactics. The Irish Government can be guaranteed to add fuel to the flames at every conceivable opportunity.

On this latest occasion, the Eire Government has naturally expressed disgust at the murders and demanded that the killers be brought to justice. What brass-bound impudence!

The internal affairs of Northern Ireland, insofar as they do not involve Irish citizens, are no concern of any other country, especially a ramshackle potato republic like Eire. Furthermore, the murder of Loyalists by IRA psychopaths elicits little more from the Government of Eire than ritual diplomatic tut-tutting and a positive effort not merely to prevent the murderers being brought to justice but to offer them safe haven.

The sole reason for the existence of the IRA, and the endless round of killings that result, is the impertinent territorial claim by Eire to the British province of Northern Ireland. Until the Eire Government drops that ludicrous claim the killings will continue and no mealy-mouthed political compromises offered by our very own Peter "Babbling" Brooke will do anything to stem the bloodletting.

The solution is not to offer concessions to the Irish but to tell them bluntly to mind their own business; declare Ulster to be British for ever, and move to have Eire expelled from the EEC for harbouring terrorists. Since Eire is the EEC's chief bum and panhandler, that would concentrate their minds wonderfully.

The Tories Can't Protect Us

REGARDING YOUR banner headline "150 Arrests Will Halt IRA Terror", if this is the case then why don't the Government round up this hard core who during the last two months have perpetrated appalling crimes against the British people.

Not only have they made an attempt on the Prime Minister's life and on the lives of those members of his War Cabinet, but also on innocent members of the British public, succeeding in killing one and injuring a dozen others.

These atrocities came at a time when men and women of the British Armed Forces had been sent to the Gulf and were risking their lives for a cause which is not by any means associated with the security of OUR nation.

Is it not then ironic that the party that is pledged to 'Govern and Protect' is finding it very difficult, if not impossible, to do either on Britain's own doorstep.

Why won't the Government act on the advice given to it by the experts who know the facts? This disgraceful state of affairs has got to be corrected before yet another sickening atrocity is inflicted on the long-suffering British people.

Let's Have the Same Treatment for the UDR 4

NOW THAT the Birmingham Six have been freed, helped by the full weight of the Left-Wing British and foreign media, I wonder will it be too much to ask that these same journalists and presenters turn their attention to securing the speedy release of the UDR Four.

However, being Loyalists I doubt whether these innocent men will merit more than just a few lines tucked away at the bottom of the page. It makes me wonder what the media's reaction would have been if these men were Republicans - no doubt it would be front page news along with TV documentaries on their behalf.

The National Front must be at the forefront of bringing the plight of these four men to the attention of the British people.

We need people with the right qualities to become Firefighters — and that includes women as well as men — to commence training on our next Recruits Course programmed for 5th August. Together with the satisfaction of serving the local community, you'll enjoy good holidays, pay, pension, and many other benefits. After four years' service, a qualified Firefighter can be earning over £14,000 pa. As long as you meet our standards, the Fire Service offers you a first-class career with every chance of promotion. All the country's present Chief Fire Officers started their careers as Firefighters.

To join you must be aged between 18 and 30, with a good character, and be physically and medically fit with no artificial aids to vision.

Minimum height 1.68 metres (5'6"), maximum height 1.93 metres (6'4"). Applications are particularly welcome from members of ethnic minority groups and women, as they are currently under-represented in the Fire & Rescue Service. S.38 of the RRA 1976 and S.48 of the SDA 1975 apply.

For an Application form, write to: The Chief Fire Officer, Bedfordshire Fire and Rescue Service Headquarters, Southfields Road, Kempston, Bedford MK42 7NR, enclosing a stamped (59p) and self-addressed envelope (25cm × 18cm). Closing date for receipt of applications is 30th April 1991.

Bedfordshire COUNTY COUNCIL

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES EMPLOYER

Just Another Example

FIRSTLY, I thought you might like to see how desperate Bedfordshire Fire Service is to reach its target quota for employing members of our ethnic minorities. The advert is just another example of the awful Americanization and Negrification of British life.

My other point concerns potential funding of a full-time Public Relations Officer for the National Front. We have a Patriots Defence Fund, and selective appeals for funds and the Friends of the Front scheme. Why not a sponsored full-time officer for the Party, his salary paid for by members' standing orders each month.

The benefit of a full-time operative with his mind unclouded by earning a living and able to devote himself to the Party would be significant. If 100 members gave £5.00 a month by standing order, the Party could give the officer a wage, although not vast, that is enough to live on.

For this purpose I would be willing to donate and I am sure 99 others can be found to do the same. Members in unemployment black spots, who could not donate individually could donate as a branch so that everyone feels they are playing their part to help the National Front.

Joe Radusin,
Bedford.

THOUGHT FOR THE MONTH

"Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance: feed them also, and lift them up for ever".

Psalm 28,
Verse 9.

● CHALLENGER 2: Britain should not sell it to Iran.

We Must Build Up Britain's Defences

I RECENTLY read that Vickers look set to supply the British Army with the new generation of Challenger 2 tanks winning the contract in the face of competition from an American rival the Abrams Mark 2 made by General Dynamics.

Apparently the Army wants 320 tanks, an order worth £640 million to Vickers, and the British Government is hoping that the order will encourage . ."overseas orders from Iran and the United Arab Emirates".

Forgive me if I am wrong but aren't the Tories contradicting themselves by cutting our armed forces on the one hand and then spending £640 million on new equipment?

Many Britons have complained because before the Gulf War we were selling military equipment to Iraq. Who says we may never be at war with Iran or the Arab Emirates?

I say put an end to defence cuts and keep the Challenger Tank in Britain. Let's build up a defence force that can ensure the security of Britain and British interests without having to rely on any other country!

Keith Wood,
Newcastle,
Tyneside.

Don't Waste Your Energy

THE GREATEST crime against the British people ever perpetrated has been the imposition of coloured immigration. Over the centuries millions of our countrymen have died defending our shores from invading forces, yet the current generation of Britons is just sitting back and watching our towns and cities become alien settlements.

The National Front must not waste its time on other issues. They are not important. The apparent desire of the British people to commit suicide is the most important political issue of all time. The NF, like the Samaritans, must try and talk the British people out of it by friendly persuasion and powerful argument. It can be done but it needs a cast iron commitment from thousands of single-minded people who are not side tracked by other less important issues.

What's Happened to the Sellers at Elland Road?

I AM a proud member of Her Majesty's Forces and follow the activities of the National Front with interest. Obviously it is hard for me to be an active member as I have to keep my political views to myself due to my job, even so I and many of my colleagues support wholeheartedly the NF and what it stands for.

I often buy The FLAG when I visit Elland Road to watch the mighty Leeds United, however I have not been able to purchase a copy for the last couple of months because your sellers have disappeared. The people who sold there were always polite and had a cheery word and were no bother to anyone and did a steady stream of business. I can only imagine that they have been stopped by the West Yorkshire Police from selling outside the ground.

I find this a disgraceful state of affairs as this country is supposed to be a democracy and especially as the Socialist Worker is still sold and flaunted outside the ground.

I also visit York to go shopping and have been frequently stopped by people selling socialist papers forcing their views on you. My wife got quite irate about them saying what we should think about the Gulf War and the other views they hold. I bet I am not the only person who feels like this.

Keep up the good work, more and more people are getting fed up with Muslims and every other Tom, Dick and Harry taking over our country.

A Proud Gunner,
Noth Yorkshire.

FLAG SPORT

A Future For Rugby League

• FLYING THE RUGBY LEAGUE FLAG: Fulham in training at Crystal Palace.

THE REVOLTING hype that surrounded the first Grid-Iron league game on our sacred Wembley turf must have sent many people off to the bathroom. It was so totally alien to Britain and the British people that even after years of being on a diet of Americana it appeared strange and foreign.

Much more important for the British people is the battle for survival that is going on elsewhere in London, at the Crystal Palace National Sports Centre to be precise, where Fulham Rugby League Club are battling away in the Stones Bitter Championship Division Two.

Fulham have been flying the Rugby League flag in the South of the country now for ten years. At present they are seventh in the league and are commanding crowds of 800 at their home games. To survive each week is an achievement in itself and unless another Rugby League club gets established in the capital, Fulham's brave battle for survival will come to an undistinguished end.

Rugby League is a traditional British sport. To say it's attraction is solely Northern based is nonsense - just look at the viewing figures for BBC Grandstand's televised game most Saturday afternoons.

Support should be given to help other Rugby League clubs get established in the South of England. It would be so much more British than that Yankee grid-iron rubbish!

Follow Trainers Not Horses

IT ALMOST makes one want to give up gambling to read that Cyril Stein's, Labrokes Betting Offices made a profit of £91.7 million last year. A nauseating figure three times more than all racing received from the Government's Levy to the sport.

However the draw is too strong and this month we turn to the flat to try to make our fortune.

As with previous years we start the flat season tipping trainers to follow rather than horses. Ken Ivory. has his horses well forward, as does Brian McMahon, we suggest that you just follow their runners, each way, for the next month and on the 30th April we hope to be a few bob in pocket.

FOOTBALL IN THE FUTURE!

JOHN McAULEY looks into the future and imagines how the FOOTBALL LEAGUE'S Annual Report might look for the season 2005- 06.

IT IS now ten years since the Revised Football Spectators Bill' came into operation and the hooligan problem which latched on to football in the 1980's has now moved to the nation's supermarkets on a Saturday afternoon.

Our soccer grounds have never been so safe with all ten clubs leaner, fitter and more enterprising than ever before with excellent balance sheets and all showing corporate profits that are the envy of the City.

It was disappointing that the last of Non-League football was seen this year. The Ground Modernisation Bill put all those clubs without £10 million to spend on improvements out of business and with very few playing fields left in the country, football on a Sunday morning with the Super League is all that is on offer.

The moving of our games to 2.00am Sunday morning so that they can be shown live in America on Saturday afternoon has been another great success. The drop in attendances in this country being more than compensated by the increase in revenue from the States.

The big talking point of the coming season is whether to elect Glasgow City in place of Manchester United, the last of the old League Clubs, who have finished bottom of the Super League for the last two season. Glasgow City were formed three years ago with the amalgamation of Rangers and Celtic. Their olympic-sized stadium built by the Clyde is shared with the Glasgow Kilts the successful American Football team.

Finally, we now have the brochures produced by by our two new clubs of last season Lancashire Murdoch and West London Conglomerates. Their brief details are . . .

Lancashire Murdoch: Formed in 1994 from the remnants of Preston, Blackburn, Blackpool, Bolton, and Burnley. This club offers superb facilities for all businesses and was the first to introduce a share broking service in all Executive Lounges.

Rupert Murdoch owner of the club has given the supporters one of the most modern and attractive grounds in the country with its closing roof a dramatic feature. Capacity: 8,000, Admission Prices: 12 Seat Box £750, 8 Seat Box £400, 6 Seat Box £300; Sorry no single seats.

West London Conglomerates: Emerged in 1996 with the banning of Chelsea and decline of Fulham, QPR, Wimbledon, Crystal Palace and Brentford. True to its surroundings the ground offers you all the razzmatazz of the West End.

Excellent cocktail and wine bars together with superb hotel accomodation in this fashionable part of London. Capacity: 18,000 Admission 12 Seat Box £1,500, 8 Seat Box £1,100, 6 Seat Business Lunch Box £900. The clubs new owners, the Khan Corportation, who also own Harrods, The Savoy and Hyde Park are very happy with the facilities they have acquired at the Mandela Complex.

★ LEAGUE RULING: Yorkshire County must play their home games in silence so as not to disturb worshippers at the Elland Road Mosque.

SUPER LEAGUE Season 2005-06

		P.	W	D.	L.	Pts	Gate.
1.	Merseyside Region	18	12	6	0	42	7,100
2.	North East United	18	9	9	0	36	4,180
3.	West Midlands	18	10	5	3	35	9,990
4.	West London Conglomerates	18	9	6	3	33	11,120
5.	AFC Docklands	18	8	8	2	30	9,800
6.	East Midlands Maxwell	18	4	8	6	20	7,900

8.	Yorkshire County	18	3	7	8	16	4,002
9.	White Hart Highbury Holdings	18	3	6	9	15	6,856
10.	Manchester United	18	3	6	9	15	1,123

THE NATIONAL Front says 'No to the Super League' which will destroy English Football as we know it. Club identities will be lost and football as a sport and entertainment will be replaced by football as a business and profit maker for its owners.
